An interesting murder trial is now in progress in Chicago. The wife of a wealthy sausage manufacturer disappeared, and he was charged with murdering her and destroying her body in an acid vat. When the vat was examined only a bone and a hank of hair remained. The question to be determined is was this bone of her bone and hank of her hair. He says she has disappeared and is now in Germany, where he is having search made for her, but his neighbors believe he murdered her and melted her body in the acid vat. The first report was that her body was ground up in a sausage mill.

For some time seafaring men have been pouring oil upon the troubled waters, and now the railroad men are laying the dust with it. Experiments have proved so satisfactory that the Pennsylvania road is going to sprinkle its lines with kerosene, which in the crude state is about as cheap as good water up there and almost as plentiful, if not moreso.

Kaiser William seems to be a right hard man for his ministers of state to get along with. In the nine years in which he has reigned he has had as Emperor of Germany and King of Prussia thirty four ministerial changes. His first bounce was Bismarck, whom he retired to private life.

The French people seem to have more fondness for dogs than children. The number of registered dogs has increased from 1,800,000 in 1873, to 2,650,000. These figures will not change the opinion of people who think that France is "going to the dogs."

The Colts had the Beaneaters cleverly whipped yesterday, but became too jubilant and allowed their opponents to tie the score on account of errors and lucky hits. At the end of the eleventh inning the game was called on account of darkness.

The Reds acknowledged defeat twice yesterday. New York's pitching team was Rusie and Meekin, officiating in the first and second games respectively.

In the third, fourth and fifth innings the Orioles made fourteen hits off Donahue, the St. Louis twirler, netting twelve runs. Hoffer was not quite understood by the Browns.

Dudley; Second Lieutenant, Joseph Loughlin. The commissions for the newly elected officers will be issued by the Commander of the Boys' Brigade of America, with headquarters in Chicago.

The members of the brigade expect to continue to work with vim and determination and are enthusiastic over the prospects before them. There are numerous candidates for membership, but the number of members cannot be increased on account of lack of armory room.

Country Merchants

The approach of the autumnal season with its accompanying increase of trade brings a number of country merchants into the city. Among those here yesterday were H. C. Bridger, Bladenboro; P. P. Shepard, Sneed's Ferry; E. L. Smith, Marines; Ira Hall and Walter Atkinson, Sloop Point; Walter Murrill, Jacksonville; J. D. Batts, Holly Ridge; W. J. Mallard and J. O. Howard, Hampstead; D. J. Falls, Cypress Lake.

THE COTTON SEASON.

Receipts for the Past Year Show a Large Increase as Compared With Receipts the Year Previous.

Yesterday, August 31st, closed the cotton year. The business in cotton during the year was considerably larger than that of the preceding year and is gratifying to all those who desire to see evidences of growth in every line of business that Wilmington is interested in.

The report of Col. John L. Cantwell, Secretary and Treasurer of the Produce Exchange, shows the receipts for the year to have been 234 664 bales, against 178,447 for the last crop year. The exports were 239,733 bales, against 171,505 last year.

It is remarkable how nearly equal are the receipts and exports of the year just ended to those of the year ending August 31, 1895. The figures are, for receipts, 234,664 and 234,621 bales for '95 and '97 respectively, while the exports stood 235,647 in '95 and 239,733 in '97.

The receipts of cotton for August this year are a good deal smaller than for August of last year, being only 174 against 5,389.

Only about 95 bales of new cotton have been received so far, but cotton men say the crop is beginning to move and receipts will of course grow steadily from now on.

Funeral of the Late W. J. Furlong.

The funeral of the late Mr. W. J. Furlong was conducted yesterday afternoon at 4 30 o'clock from the residence, 704 Castle street, thence to St. Thomas Catholic Church, which was thronged with sorrowing friends and relatives. As the casket was borne in a quartette, consisting of Mrs. Joseph Watters, Miss Marion Banks, Miss Mary Bates and Mr. John W. Reilly, rendered feelingly the hymn, "Abide with Me."

The services, which were brief but touching, were conducted by Rev. Father C. Dennen. When they were concluded and while Mrs. Joseph Watters and Miss Marion Banks sang "He Giveth His Beloved Rest," the pall bearers bore the remains to the hearse and the long funeral cortege proceeded to Oakdale cemetery, where the interment was made. The mound was covered with flowers, arranged in most beautiful and appropriate designs.

Messrs. Michael Griffin and W. C. VonGlahn were the honorary pall-bearers. The active pall-bearers were Messrs. James Allen, R. C. Banks Thomas Torpy, Jr., Jack Scott, R. C Platt and Oscar Morris.

The Hibernian Benevolent Society attended the funeral in a body.

BOARD OF HEALTH.

Monthly Report of the County Superintendent, Dr. W. D. McMillan.

The Board of Health met last night in regular monthly session in the office of Dr. W. D. McMillan, superintendent of health. The meeting was called to order at 8.30 o'clock by Mayor S. P. Wright, M. D., after which the minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

Complaint was made to the Board about the filthy condition of Market street, between Second and Third, directly in front of two grocery stores. On motion, the superintendent of health was instructed to investigate the matter.

Dr. McMillan handed in his monthly report for August, which read as follows:

GENTLEMEN—Our books show that during the past month our health officers have made 3,719 inspections, finding 2,853 premises in good sanitary condition and have had 358 cleaned. There have been 94 permits granted for the removal of earth. There have been 69 births, 56 white and 33 colored; nine still borns, 3 white and 6 colored; 48 deaths, 15 white and 33 colored, six of which were transported from the city by permission. Two residents were quarantined on account of scarlet fever, but there has been no unusual amount of sickness.

Several other matters of business were then transacted, after which the meeting adjourned.

Merchants' Excursions.

The Richmond Dispatch says: "The New York Merchants' Association estimates that its city's increase of business from the visits of outside buyers this season will approximate $50,000,000. Let the good work of merchantss' xcursions to New York, Richmond and other cities, but more particularly to Richmond, go on." And why not Wilmington? The STAR has kept this question prominently before our business men for some time. Will not our railroads give Wilmington the same advantages it offers other cities? Has any one taken the trouble to enquire?

Harbor Master's Report.

The report of Capt. E. D. Williams, Harbor Master, shows arrivals during August of vessels registering over 90 tons as follows:

WEDDING AT SOUTHPORT.

Marriage of Miss Aleita Usena Thompson to Lieut. Horace Dale Glover of the U. S. Cutter Morrill.

Southport yesterday at high noon was the scene of a fashionable and happy event, when Lieut Horace Dale Glover, of the U. S. revenue cutter Morrill, and Miss Aleita Usena Thompson, of Southport, met at the altar and formed a union for life. The ceremony took place at the residence of the bride's father, Capt. T. M. Thompson, the interior of which had been handsomely and artistically festooned with the rarest of cut plants, flowers, etc.; the parlors of this spacious residence, where the marriage vows were spoken, especially displayed the touch of the decorator's hand, who had performed his task well and certainly succeeded in accomplishing a portrayal of nature's magnificent splendor.

Promptly at high noon, as old Sol reached his pinnacle of glory and shed his powerful and dazzling rays upon the scene which then took on the appearance of a palace of enchantment, and as the organ, hidden behind a wall of fragrant flowers, under a skilled touch pealed forth Mendelssohn's wedding march, the auspicious event commenced. First, the two little flower girls, Miss Mary Lilly Fisher, of South Carolina, and Miss Bessie Reiger, of this city, both neices of the bride. Next the attendants, in the following order, viz: Miss Flossie Reiger and Dr. G. Kirby Collier, both of this city; Miss Mary Phelps, of New York city, and Mr. Chas. I. Gause, of Southport; Miss Addie New, first bridesmaid, of Portsmouth, Va., and Lieut. Snyder, of the Morrill. Miss Annie H Thompson, the maid of honor and sister of the bride, then walked in, followed by the groom, accompanied by his best man, A. G. Ricaud, Esq., of this city; the bride, handsomely attired in a magnificent gown of heavy white satin brocade, trimmed with old rose point lace and bedecked with diamonds, among which was a sun-burst, the present of the groom, entered leaning upon the arm of her father, Capt. T. M. Thompson. The bridal party arranged themselves gracefully in the centre of the parlors, and Rev. James Carmichael, D. D., pastor of St. John's Episcopal Church, this city united the happy couple in the holy bonds of matrimony; upon the conclusion of which the organ sent forth the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, and the bridal procession formed again and retraced their steps from the parlors, repairing to another portion of the residence, where a reception was held.

At 2 30 o'clock, Lieut. and Mrs. Glover and bridal party embarked on board the steamer Wilmington en route for this city, and as the cutter Morrill was sighted, three hearty cheers were wafted off the deck of the Morrill, directly from the hearts of the crew who had been drawn up on deck and who took this way of expressing themselves for the happiness of their superior officer and his bride. The steamer Wilmington responded with three merry blasts of the whistle, and then sped on its way.

About 5 o'clock the Wilmington reached the city, and the bridal party repaired to The Orton, from where Lieut. and Mrs. Glover left and embarked on the 7.15 o'clock north bound Atlantic Coast Line train on a tour embracing visits to Washington, New York and Canada. At the depot rice and other tokens of good luck were showered upon the happy two.

Among the attendants at the wedding were Mrs. H. K White, of Norfolk, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Harper, of Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Harry Phelps, of New York city; Mrs. C. H. Fisher, of South Carolina; Mrs. A. W. Reiger and Mr. Kidder, of Wilmington, and the officers of the Morrill in full dress uniform.

The flower-girls were becomingly attired in white, and each carried a handful of pink carnations. The bridesmaids were habited in white organdie over taffeta, trimmed with green silk ribbon, with the exception of the first bridesmaid, whose costume was trimmed with white satin ribbon and pearls.

The groomsmen wore the conventional black. The bride at the time of her departure was handsomely costumed in a tailor-made suit of dark green broadcloth. The presents received by the happy couple were both many and costly, and bespoke the love and esteem of a large number of friends, but were we gifted with the inspiration of language we trow that even then we would realize "how poorly eloquence of words translates the poetry of hearts who have an union formed for life."

Death of Jno. C. Thomson.

Mr. Jno. C. Thomson died at his residence in Fayetteville last Saturday in his 89d year. He was a native of New York, but had resided in Fayetteville over fifty years, where he had established a reputation as a merchant and as a Christian that made him one of the most honored citizens of the home of his adoption. For more than sixty years he was a faithful and consistent member of the Methodist Church.

AN IMPORTANT CONNECTION.

The A. C. L. to Make Transportation Connection in Newbern With the A. & N. C.

[Newbern Journal.]

Some important dealings are going on between the Atlantic Coast Line and the Atlantic & North Carolina railroad, looking to better mutual transportation facilities for both roads, in and out of this city.

The present situation of both roads here offers nothing in common. The W. & N. crosses the A. & N. C. at right angles and any business transacted must be done by transfer, not even a switch offering transportation facilities for freight between the roads.

It is now proposed to buy property lying between the two roads in this city, put in a Y, and thus connect both roads.

It is also said that the A. C. L. will make traffic arrangements with the A. & N. C. to use its tracks to Kinston, and will from Kinston make connections to run a through passenger and freight service from Wilmington to the North via New Berne.

An arrangement of this kind means important things to this section.

— Maxton is receiving new cotton and paying 7¼ cents for it.

ROOF PAINTING.

OWNERS OF BUILDING IN AND AROUND Wilmington will find it to their interest to see W. C. Mitchell about their leaking roofs before it is too late to remedy same. While you sleep rust is playing havoc with your Tin and Iron Roofs.

The ordinary paints that are used for such work crack from the heat and peal off, hence, the water finds its way to the tin and soon makes your roof a seive, from which your tenants complain. I am here in the interest of such roofs with a

Combination Roof Paint

that stops all leaks and makes your roof fire and water proof. This Paint is a combination that expands to heat and shrinks as it cools. It will not crack, scale or peel off, and is durable from eight to ten years without extra coating, and for than any other Paint known to the painting fraternity. My son, who superintends the work, has twenty years' experience at the business that he learned from his Old Dad, who served five years under an Englishman to learn the Art of Painting.

All orders addressed to me through the postoffice, or at the Marlborough House, or at the Hardware store of Owen F. Love & Co., will receive prompt attention. I will be here six or eight weeks. Any patronage will be appreciated. I can give reliable references from parties for whom I have worked.

By WILLIAM H. BERNARD.

WILMINGTON, N. C.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, SEPT. 1, 1897

SEES DANGER AHEAD.

The Republican managers and organs in the last Presidental campaign confidently predicted and promised prosperity if McKinley should be elected. Of course they were not basing their predictions or promises on the wheat crop of this year, for they had no means of knowing what that would be, or of knowing that there would be such short crops in either wheat-growing and wheat-importing countries. They were basing their predictions and promises altogether on the prosperity propelling tariff, which McKinley's supporters would give the country, and consequently they were quick to claim that prosperity had already arrived as soon as it was announced that the Republicans were successful, which they attributed to the confidence inspired by the success of that party and the assurance it gave that this prosperity producing tariff would be forthcoming in due time. But after a brief spurt in filling held-up orders prosperity halted and loitered on the way until the big wheat crop was harvested and it was known that there was short crops in other countries, creating a foreign demand, which started prosperity on the move again and sent it along in pretty good shape—for the wheat growers at least.

The Democratic co-laborers of Hanna echoed the predictions and promises of the Republican prophets, but as they didn't foresee the large wheat crop of this country nor the short crops in other countries, they of course, didn't base their predictions or promises on these, but on the "confidence" inspired by the declaration for "sound money" so emphatically made by the election of McKinley. The prosperity that has come hasn't been from either of the causes upon which the predictions were based, but from an entirely different cause, which knocks the prophets out and shows that they were merely talking wild and didn't know anything about it.

They at the same time predicted that if Bryan should be elected the country would go to the demnition bowwows. Would the election of Bryan have affected the short crops of wheat in other countries or the large crop in this country? and if not, wouldn't there be rattling prices for wheat, just as there is now, and even higher prices for with free silver assured prices would be higher. Doesn't this knock these prophets out, again, and show that they were talking wild and didn't know what they were talking about.

One of the first optimists that bobbed up after the election of McKinley was Hon. Chauncey M. Depew, who saw prosperity bowling right along, although he didn't see a big wheat crop here or short wheat crops over there, but he saw prosperity all the same, and among the last things he said when starting off for his summer frolic in Europe, was that he would tell them when he got on the other side that prosperity had already arrived—with her Sunday clothes on, as it were. Mr. Depew and his fellow-prophets, doubtless to offset the gloomy chatting of the so called pessimists, talked to build up hope and confidence, a very commendable thing to do if they hadn't carried it to the extreme that they did. Some of them are now beginning to think that they have perhaps carried this thing too far and stimulated hopes and efforts, that unless checked and restrained may end in disaster before prosperity gets a real good start. The New York Times, one of the prosperity foreseeing and predicting Democratic gold organs, quotes Mr. Depew as sounding the following "warning:"

"The pace has been set so suddenly, and is increasing so fast, that it will require all the conservative forces of the country to prevent in two years from now a general wreck. In other words, our dangers are not only overtrading, but the launching of innumerable enterprises in which hope will be more powerful than judgment."

This is sensible, much more sensible than the wild predictions that have stimulated the contingency that is warned against. It foresees and points to possible breakers ahead, unless these gentlemen can undo some of the work they have done and slow up the march.

In fact it has a gloomy cast about it, for it contemplates among the possibilities and certainties if they don't go slow, "a general wreck," as the result of enterprises stimulated by the "hope" that is "more powerful than judgment." The sanguine temperaments which predicted so much and begat such dangerous "hope" were evidently "more powerful than judgment," a view which a good many people took of it all along.

It is the regulation tune with the gold organs, both of the Republican and so called Democratic persuasion, to declare that the prosperity which is now putting in an appearance will knock out silver and make Wm. J. Bryan a reminiscence. But suppose they should fail to subdue this "hope" that will be "more powerful than judgment" and the "wreck" comes that Mr. Depew warns against, how will it be then? Will silver be knocked out or will Mr. Bryan be a back number?

We are free to confess that we do not apprehend such a calamity as Mr. Depew puts among the possibilities or probabilities, for we do not think prosperity is going to hit the country in such big chunks as to set everybody wild and Klondike them as it were. The American people have been groping in the shades of adversity so long that they have been considerably sobered and they are not going to play the fool as soon as they get on a little high ground where they catch a little more daylight and sunshine, and they are not all taking it for granted that prosperity is here to stay and that the country is going to wallow in wealth out of the crops of this year, although some statistical idiots are figuring to create that belief.

There are three years to run before another Presidential election, and if prices should from full crops or other causes sag back to the figures of the past few years, then the goldites may buckle on their armor for another tussle with played-out silver and "relegated" Bryan, or some other good Democrat with a silver ring in him.

MINOR MENTION.

The New York World is a great interrogator. Among the distinguished persons whose views it has sought on the present situation and the prospective longevity of prosperity is Hon. Richard P. Bland, "Silver Dick," whose letter in response to inquiries propounded, is interesting and concludes as follows:

"We insist also that good prices are a good thing, a good thing for the country and all of its people. This is now practically admitted.

"The only question remaining, then, is 'can we depend upon the present causes and conditions that exist throughout the world to maintain good prices, especially in this country.' The answer to that is that we cannot expect that Nature will always favor us by shortening the crops of other people for our especial benefit; that there can be nothing permanent in the prosperity that is now supposed to exist. Whereas, on the other hand, the prosperity that would result from the restoration of free coinage of silver would be that increase of prices in the country and the world over and the betterment of mankind generally, and this better condition would be permanent, not accidental or exceptional. Wait and see the result.

"How long will this stimulated condition in the price of farm products and apparent prosperity coming to this country exist? It is too early yet to predict on this subject, except in so far as I have already stated, that when present conditions are reversed calamity will come.

"Before the gold standard advocate boasts upon these causes or his theories of prosperity, as indicated by present conditions, let him wait! Let him wait to see whether all the people are employed at fair wages. At the present time such is not the case.

"We hope for the best for our country and for the world; would be glad to see prosperity everywhere, but so far as the cause is concerned our argument is now admitted by our opponents, and unless there should universally exist prosperity in this country during the rest of Mr. McKinley's administration, not only will the argument be upon our side, but the votes also in the approaching elections of 1898 and 1899."

The prosperity that is the result of what might be classed as an accident cannot be depended upon. Of course it might be continued indefinately if the conditions that brought it about were indefinitely continued, but not otherwise. When the conditions change then the reaction must come, and the advocates of a more liberal and more reasonable and just monetary policy will have their innings.

A company has been organized in Chicago known as the "American Beet Sugar Factory Construction Company," the object of which is to invest money in the erection and operation of sugar plants. It makes two propositions, one of which is that it will erect and have ready for operation within twelve months, a factory with a capacity of 300 tons a day, at a cost of about $300,000, the company to furnish one half the capital, local capitalists the other half, or it will erect such a plant and furnish skilled labor to operate it for the first year for five per cent. of the investment, or about $15,000, and give bond that the net profits in the way of dividends will amount to not less than 10 per cent. on the capital invested, with 6 per cent. additional as interest. An agent of this company is now visiting beet-growing sections of the West. A factory is to be built at Chillicothe, Ohio, whether by this company or not, is not stated. A number of new factories will be built this year in the West. There does not seem to be any trouble in commanding the capital for this purpose when there is assurance of having a sufficient supply of beets to keep a factory in operation through the working season of about 100 days. It requires about 3,000 acres of beets to keep a 300-ton-a-day factory going, and it doesn't seem that it should be a difficult thing to secure that many acres in any live agricultural section, especially as the beets pay about $4 a ton, or a profit of about $40 an acre, so that the sugar factory is not only a good thing for the men who put their money in it, but for the farmers who grow the beets. There is not the slightest danger of the business being overdone, even if the number of factories should increase tenfold for years to come.

A gold organ rises to remark that "the silver owned by the Government cost us $464,310,000 and its value in the market to-day is but $253,225,000," This is a sample of the rot they are dishing out day after day. Who proposes to take this $464,310,000 of silver and dump it on the market? If it were so dumped it would, of course, go at its bullion value, but as there is not the slightest probability of that, unless some of the extreme gold worshippers should have their way, of which there is little danger, every dollar of this is worth just 100 cents. It will buy 100 cents worth of stuff, pay 100 cents worth of taxes, and that's all the gold dollar can do. This is not because these silver dollars are redeemable in gold for they are not, but because they bear the Government stamp and are declared by law to be 100 cent dollars, and if there were ten times as many of them it would not affect the legal standing a particle. Being more abundant they might purchase less, and thus become what the gold people call "cheap" money, but that's the kind of money which keeps moving and brings and ensures prosperity, for then enterprise is stimulated, the idle have work and can earn the means to live well and comfortably though prices be higher. There is as little sense in talking about the market value of coined money as there is in talking about the market value of the paper on which greenbacks, treasury notes, U. S. bonds and bank notes are printed.

—— There is no use in talking nonsense when sense will serve. Over-statement is often about the worst thing imaginable. When Assistant Secretary Brigham tells the country that the farmers will receive this year "from four to five hundred million dollars in excess of that received last year for their wheat," he is talking arrant nonsense. At the utmost this year's wheat crop amounts to 550,000,000 bushels, against about 500,000,000 last year. It would require a rise of about a dollar a bushel over last year's prices to produce any such result as that predicted by Assistant Secretary Brigham. There has been no such rise. The results actually reached are gratifying enough. There is no occasion to exzaggerate them and no profit in doing so.—New York World, Dem.

It seems that a young man named Watts stole a young woman named Sconce and married her near the camp. The girl's father then stole her from her husband. Later the husband again stole her from the old man. The latter filled up on blockade liquor and went in search of them. He found them, but he could not get the girl back.

Dr. Herron arrived shortly afterwards and sewed up the wound. Mrs. Bingham has been in bad health for some time. C. W. Laney, an experienced and wealthy miner of Union county, is working the old copper mines in No 9 township, below Cold Spring church. He has employed a large force of hands who are now engaged in taking up surface ore, which is said to be there in great abundance. He will soon sink shafts and put in necessary machinery to operate the mines on a larger scale. A company is also working the old Phœnix mines and are taking out great quantities of copper ore. These mines are being operated at a profit.

LONG ISLAND TIMBER.

Celebrated For Its Oak, Walnut, Butternut and Chestnut.

An interesting fact not generally known is that Long Island produces better working timber than any other part of the country. Its oak, walnut and butternut for furniture and indoor fittings outrank that of all other localities in beauty of grain and durability. Its poplar and whitewood are harder and heavier than the same wood produced in the western states.

Another wood worthy of note is the white oak. Like all the native woods, its grain is exceptionally handsome, taking all sorts of curls and waves, and its irregular lines strongly defined, producing a fine effect when polished.

Trees that have attained a great age are notably rich in marking, as was found in the Bryant oak, an immense tree on the poet's estate at Roslyn, which a few years ago was undermined by springs at its root.

The tree was stored away to season and preserved for the family's use, to be made into furniture. On learning that it had been a landmark for over a century and a favorite with many old residents, Miss Julia Bryant presented one of the long arms to an old friend and neighbor, who had the wood converted into small articles for library use, such as paper knives, penholders and inkstands. These were sold at fairs for the benefit of the Home For Friendless Children, a county institution that Mr. Bryant had been greatly interested in.

A wood not as well known or appreciated by shipwrights as it should be is the Long Island chestnut. It has proved more durable than white oak. The old sloop Idlewild, built over 30 years ago and always in commission, is timbered entirely with chestnut, and not an inch of this wood has needed attention.

Long Island is also noted for its yellow locust and black walnut, and there is none finer in any part of the country than those found on the north shore. An amateur geologist accounts for this by the fact that large amounts of silica are in the clay underlying the surface soil, and that doubtless this quality in their earth food gives Long Island timber its superiority in beauty and durability and explains the hardness so wearing to workmen's tools.—Brooklyn Eagle.

A Man Did It.

Every woman will be glad to know that it was a man who did it—a man of wide experience in the world in general and in methods of travel in particular. He was a New York man, and it was his first visit to this western city. He had registered, more by chance than anything else, at a certain hotel, taken dinner there, and started out to take his first view of the place. Almost the first thing he did was to run across an acquaintance, who, by reason of his superior knowledge of the place, felt called upon to give some advice.

"What hotel are you stopping at, old man?" he asked. "The best hotel here is the Metropolitan. That is where I am stopping, and you had better come up there."

"I will," said the traveler, and a little later, returning to his hotel, he gave up his room and started out to find the Metropolitan. "Just around the corner," said the first man he asked. "I will show you," and turning he guided the traveler to the hotel he had just left, and the latter, as he registered for a second time in that hotel that day, thought things to himself of the man who could go to a hotel and not learn its name.—New York Times.

STEPHEN GIZZBUNKLER.

An Old Time Resident of Storkville Center and His Remarkable Experience.

"I doubt if any man ever had a more singular experience," said Colonel Calliper, "than once fell to the lot of my old friend, Stephen Gizzbunkler, who formerly lived in Storkville Center, Vt. Mr. Gizzbunkler, like most of us, had his peculiarities, the most conspicuous, perhaps, being his habit of always carrying an umbrella. No matter what the weather or what the signs might be, he never went out without an umbrella. He knew it would be sure to rain if he did. Where he got this impression I don't know. He may have been out some time in his youthful days in his best clothes without an umbrella when it came on to rain.

"Some years ago, when they began making the curious and costly experiments in the arid regions of the far west, firing explosives from balloons, and one thing and another, to produce rain, Mr. Gizzbunkler, standing one day with his umbrella under his arm, in the Storkville Center postoffice, perusing the newspaper which he had just taken from the mail, said:

"'Why do they waste all this money in mere experiments when they could get rain with certainty and at a far less cost? Why don't they send for me?'

"'What could you do?' asked a neighbor who was standing near.

"'Why, I could go out without my umbrella,' said Mr. Gizzbunkler, and, amazing as it may seem, it is not the less certainly a fact that he wrote to the mayor of a town near which some of these experiments had been conducted offering to go there and produce rain for his expenses. It shows the consuming desire for rain on the part of the people, and their readiness to take any chances to get it, that they immediately sent Mr. Gizzbunkler a draft for the money to come on with, without even asking him how he was going to produce the rain.

"When Mr. Gizzbunkler arrived at the town, he was met at the railroad station by a delegation of citizens, who escorted him to the hotel. Later he was waited on officially by the rain committee of the town council, who, in the presence of the reception committee and a large number of other interested citizens, asked Mr. Gizzbunkler his plans.

"They had had some queer people in this town at one time and another, but Mr. Gizzbunkler appeared to them to be the most useless person they had ever had there. At first they thought they would kill him at once, that there would at least be some slight saving in shipping him back as freight; but Stephen was so obviously a well meaning man that finally they thought they would give him a trial, which they did on the following day.

"It was a day on which any other man in the world would have left his umbrella at home, anyway. Stephen Gizzbunkler was about to leave his at home for the first time in many years, and he was equally confident of what would happen. He had been a little shaken, personally, by the attitude of the people after his simple plan had been unfolded, but his confidence in the success of his plan was quite unbroken. He laid his umbrella carefully across the foot of the bed in his room at the hotel, looked at it almost lovingly and then went down to meet the committee.

"They walked, Stephen ahead, the rain committee and the reception committee next and after them the people, along the dusty road.

"Did it rain? No, no, no. It seemed to Stephen, and it seemed to the people, too, that the corn shriveled up as he passed and that the last blades of grass withered.

"They gave him one more trial the next day, with the same results, and then they took him back to the railroad station. They had taken him away from the station in a carriage; they carried him back on a rail, but this was a matter of detail that almost escaped Stephen's attention at the time, so glad was he to get back at all.

"On the day after Mr. Gizzbunkler's return to Storkville Center he went out without an umbrella. He had had a great experience, and he had been somewhat impressed by it. Possibly he had been mistaken all these years, and he thought he would see. But that day there came a storm that swept away every bridge in the county, and which washed away, too, whatever impression the extraordinary experiences in the arid regions had made upon the mind of Mr. Stephen Gizzbunkler.

"Thereafter, until he died, Mr. Gizzbunkler carried an umbrella always, as firm as ever in the belief that it would rain if he went out without one."—New York Sun.

ZULU JINRIKISHA MEN.

Head Decorations That Are as Grotesque as They Are Ingenious.

The Zulu jinrikisha men are compelled by the English authorities to wear a uniform—a white linen tunic and loose white trousers cut off above the knee. They were like children playing at horse in the nursery, and they uttered continuous native gurglings, partly like turtledoves and partly like the hallelujah ejaculations at one of our African Methodist camp meetings. They all appeared very happy during this performance, which continued so long that I calculated the amount of energy expended to represent about ten miles of unpaid travel. Though the body dress was uniform, there was magnificent diversity regarding head decoration. One would wear a common straw hat hung around the brim with tassels suggestive of a pagoda, and the chief delight of the wearer was in shaking his head for the pleasure of making the tassels dance. Another had fastened a pair of cow horns on either side of his head immediately above the ears, and he grinned at me so effusively that I concluded he must have taken great pains with the construction of this hideous headpiece. The kinky top of a third had been interlaced with an enormous profusion of long strings of wool, to which small fluffy balls were attached at short intervals.

The head of a negro so decorated looked like a huge black mop or one of those Skye terrier dogs about whom one is never safe in saying which is the other end. In repose it is uncanny, but when your jinrikisha Zulu springs about in the shafts and throws his head up and down like a colt impatient of the bit the effect upon the newly arrived is akin to what I once experienced when a long black log of wood upon which I proposed to rest myself turned out to be a huge black snake resting from his gastronomic exercises.—Poultney Bigelow in Harper's Magazine.

Off the Malay Coast.

Sailing up the coast in a native craft, you may almost fancy yourself one of the early explorers skirting the lovely shores of some undiscovered country. As you sprawl on the bamboo decking under the shadow of the immense palm leaf sail—which is so ingeniously rigged that, if taken aback, the boat must turn turtle, unless, by the blessing of the gods, the mast parts asunder—you look out through half closed eyelids at a very beautiful coast. The waves dance and glimmer and shine in the sunlight, the long stretch of sand is as yellow as a buttercup, and the fringes of graceful casuarina trees quiver like aspens in the breeze and shimmer in the heat haze. The wash of the waves against the boat's side and the ripple of the bow make music in your drowsy ears, and as you glide through cluster after cluster of thickly wooded islands you lie in that delightful comatose state in which you have all the pleasure of existence, with none of the labor of living.—"In Court and Kampong," by Hugh Clifford.

A DAY OF DISASTER.

Fifty Persons Killed and Many Injured in Railroad Wrecks.

Fifty persons killed and many injured in railroad wrecks is the record of a single day. Such a day was Wednesday, August 18th. Fortunately, such days are rare. Accidents will happen, but they are not usually so numerous or so fatal. Many of the victims of that day's disasters were killed outright, others died from their injuries, and others will be crippled for life. Many of the latter will be compelled to seek employment in new lines of work, and will find it hard to get it. Many of the former left families dependent upon them for support, and these will find it hard to get along without the breadwinner. Many of the injured will be unable to work for months, and will find it hard to pay their doctor bills and other expenses. Many of them will be compelled to borrow money, and will find it hard to get it. Many of them will be compelled to sell their homes, and will find it hard to get a fair price for them. Many of them will be compelled to mortgage their homes, and will find it hard to get the money. Many of them will be compelled to sell their furniture, and will find it hard to get a fair price for it. Many of them will be compelled to sell their stock, and will find it hard to get a fair price for it. Many of them will be compelled to sell their crops, and will find it hard to get a fair price for them. Many of them will be compelled to sell their land, and will find it hard to get a fair price for it. Many of them will be compelled to sell their tools, and will find it hard to get a fair price for them. Many of them will be compelled to sell their clothes, and will find it hard to get a fair price for them. Many of them will be compelled to sell their jewelry, and will find it hard to get a fair price for it. Many of them will be compelled to sell their books, and will find it hard to get a fair price for them. Many of them will be compelled to sell their pictures, and will find it hard to get a fair price for them. Many of them will be compelled to sell their musical instruments, and will find it hard to get a fair price for them. Many of them will be compelled to sell their sporting goods, and will find it hard to get a fair price for them. Many of them will be compelled to sell their bicycles, and will find it hard to get a fair price for them. Many of them will be compelled to sell their automobiles, and will find it hard to get a fair price for them. Many of them will be compelled to sell their boats, and will find it hard to get a fair price for them. Many of them will be compelled to sell their airplanes, and will find it hard to get a fair price for them. Many of them will be compelled to sell their spaceships, and will find it hard to get a fair price for them. Many of them will be compelled to sell their time machines, and will find it hard to get a fair price for them. Many of them will be compelled to sell their souls, and will find it hard to get a fair price for them.

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

There is a local capitalist whose mother-in-law, to the chagrin and pain of her immediate family and descendants, persists in taking on flesh at an alarming rate. She has tried Banting and dumbbells without any appreciable result and now would almost attempt the bicycle if the city council would vote her the use of one entire street to learn in. While such a thing as her avoirdupois is never treated lightly in her presence, when she is not around it inevitably leads to more or less humorous remarks. Her little granddaughter frequently uses her weight as a term of comparison. The stone sidewalk near the house is badly cracked on one side of the street, while on the other it is in an excellent state of preservation, which state of things the little girl insists is due to the fact that her grandmother walks almost entirely on the injured side.

The other day the capitalist's wife, in accordance with an old family custom, decided to have her mother's portrait painted. She mentioned it to her husband, and without thinking twice about the matter he told her to go ahead. Chicago boasts some artists of considerable reputation, and these artists are frequently able to boast the receipt of large sums for their work. The lady in question sat for one of them. In a short space of time he transferred her lineaments, together with a smile prepared for the occasion, to canvas.

A few days later her son-in-law, who, though a wealthy man, abhors extravagance, received a bill for the same. It came one morning before he left for business. He tore open the envelope and glanced at it a moment. The amount asked was $2,000.

"Why, heavens, Maria," he said, turning to his wife, who was standing near him, "that man must charge by the square inch."—Chicago Times-Herald.

SNOWFLAKES.

The little ones kneel in the twilight gray,
And the trustful prayers that their pure lips say
Flutter toward heaven on shadowy wings,
Where the angels garner the beautiful things.

The wretched earth through her parched lips moans,
And God is grieved at the anguished tones,
While the angels bring to the mercy seat
The little ones' prayers, so pure, so sweet.

With a tender smile he takes them all,
Then down through the darkness the snowflakes fall,
Till the earth lies hushed 'neath a silence white,
Cleansed by the little ones' prayers tonight.

CURIOUS CLOCKS.

Interesting Specimens of Timepieces Which Have Been Made.

The origin of the clock is unknown, but such timepieces were known in Italy as early as the tenth century. Some think they were first invented by the Saracens. From that time many elaborate and whimsical designs were constructed, and those which were skillfully and wonderfully made brought fabulous prices. An old Italian soldier, who served prior to 1689, constructed one of the most curious of these. By its mechanism the figure of a tortoise was made to drop into a plate of water having the hours marked on its rim. The figure would float around and stop at the proper hour, telling the time like "a learned pig." A lizard also was made in the same timekeeper to ascend a pillar on which the hours were marked and point out the time as it advanced. A mouse did the same thing by creeping along an hour marked cornice. The figure of a golden cock that flapped its wings twice with the approach of the hours and crowed twice was also a popular favorite for ancient timekeepers.

Of the various specimens that might be given of early designs of the clockmakers' art not the least interesting are the several types of lamp clocks. One of these was of a kind quite common in the seventeenth century and consisted of a lamp burner placed at the base of a glass oil receptacle mounted vertically upon a suitable standard.

The oil reservoir had attached to it a scale, facing the burner and showing the hours, beginning at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, at which time the lamp was to be lighted in winter, and ending at 7 o'clock in the morning. The lamp being lighted, the gradually descending level of oil, as combustion proceeded, marked the hours. Another device—of later origin, dating back to the beginning of the present century—utilized the same principle. It consisted of two communicating oil chambers, superposed by a clock dial. In one of the chambers was placed a night lamp to illuminate this dial, and in the other was suspended a float from a cord which passed around a small pulley. The latter was mounted on a horizontal axis ending in the center of the dial. The float, of course, descended as the oil was consumed, and carried the index hand along with it, thus marking the hours precisely as in the case already cited. At their best, these timepieces could have had only an indifferent degree of accuracy, yet they probably served their purpose well, and certainly are interesting at the present time as illustrating some of the expedients adopted by mechanicians of an earlier period.

The Best Record at Coaching.

In St. Nicholas George B. Smith tells of "General Grant's White Mountain Ride," a coaching trip during which the president was driven from Bethlehem to Profile house in less than an hour by Edward Cox. Mr. Smith says:

In The Century Magazine for November, 1892, Mr. T. Suffern Tailer gave the result of a trial of speed in modern coaching. This journey was in France over roads kept in constant repair by strict enforcement of law, and the trial was under the direction of Mr. James Gordon Bennett, which implies that every possible effort was made to insure quick time. The course was from The Herald office in Paris to Trouville, distant 140 miles. Horses stationed in advance were changed 18 times, and driven, as Mr. Tailer himself shows, unsparingly. Nine people were in the party, and the time made was, for the entire trip, 10 hours and 50 minutes, or a little over 12 miles an hour, including changes, over macadamized French roads, comparatively level.

Contrast this showing of 12 miles in 60 minutes with every advantage and that of 11 miles in 58 minutes over mountain roads in the country, eight horses to be driven, with 16 people to carry, and the reader can easily see which is the greater performance. It is probable that Mr. Cox's achievement has never been excelled, when everything is considered.

General Grant, as he dismounted from his lofty perch, was a curious spectacle. Covered with dust from head to foot, he had the appearance of a man who had been rolled in the road. Hat, hair and whiskers had suffered alike, and, including his clothing, he was all dust color.

The Guns Were Fired.

The late Congressman Holman some years ago was chairman of a committee to investigate alleged Indian abuses. In the course of its journeyings the committee visited Reno. Colonel E. V. Sumner of the Fifth cavalry was in command of the fort, and as the distinguished party entered the inclosure he caused a salute to be fired. The cannon roared, and there was a great demonstration. When the colonel came forward to greet the visitors, Judge Holman said: "Colonel, what is all that cannonading for? What's the occasion of it?" "It is a salute in honor of you gentlemen," explained Colonel Sumner. "Then stop it; stop it right off. It is a useless waste of public money, sir, and I cannot permit it," said the great objector, with alarm depicted on his countenance. "Sorry, Mr. Holman," said the colonel, greatly taken aback, "but those guns have got to be fired off. The regulations require it." The judge grumbled, and declared that it was a scandalous shame to burn up public funds that way.—New York Tribune.

IN OTHER LANDS.

Sight-Seeing in England—Westminster, the Receptacle of Royal Dust and Resting Place of Illustrious Men and Women.

HOTEL CECIL STRAND W. C.,
LONDON, Aug. 16th, 1897.

WILMINGTON STAR:—Having a few moments' leisure this morning, it occurs to me it may possibly interest you and some of your readers for me to give an account of our tour thus far and of the things seen by me in London.

My wife and I sailed from New York July 23d on board the steamship Barbarossa, of the North German Lloyd Line, a remarkably fine vessel, where every attention to the comfort of the passengers was afforded. The weather was fine, and the sea so smooth that there was but little sea-sickness among the passengers. I did not suffer at all in that way, but was ready always to "eat my rations." My wife, however, was not so fortunate; she was more or less sick the entire voyage. I laughingly told her that she was so merely because she thought it was the proper thing to be sick at sea, and because the condition of the sea air made it inevitable. On reaching London, August 3d, we promptly commenced sight seeing. We went with this object, first to the venerable Westminster Abbey. Within this building every reigning Sovereign of England, from William the Conqueror to Queen Victoria, has been crowned, and many of them now lie buried beneath its floors. Not only were England's Sovereigns buried there, but likewise many of the illustrious men and women whose names and deeds are recorded in history there lie, awaiting the resurrection of the dead. Great victories won by English armies were formerly celebrated by processions and Te Deums beneath its roof. Here lie the remains of Edward, the confessor, and on the monument is the recumbent effigy of the Saint, the touching of which was thought to effect wonderful cures of all diseases flesh is heir to, especially "King's Evil." Even now, I am told some pious and credulous people resort to this tomb to seek relief from bodily ills. Oliver Cromwell and the Duke of Marlborough were originally buried in the Abbey, but at the restoration the remains of the former were removed, and those of the great Duke were transferred by his wife to Blenheim. Here also we see the monument to General Monk, the restorer of the monarchy under Charles II. Here, too, are the graves of the two Pitts—the Earl of Chatham and his great son—and of Charles James Fox, of Castlereagh, and Grattan. The younger Pitt, you remember, became Prime Minister of England at the age of twenty-four. He died insolvent, and was buried at the public expense—an example of official integrity—the average politician of our country is by no means ambitious to follow. Here also is buried Major Andre, whose remains were disinterred on the banks of the Hudson and brought for their final abode to this Abbey. The monument over this grave has carved on it a bas relief likeness of General Washington, receiving the petition in which Andre implored for a soldier's rather than a felon's death. I confess I have always felt much sympathy for Andre. What a pity it is that Benedict Arnold could never be made to expiate his damnable treachery?

I was much interested in the monuments to Mary Stuart and her great rival, Queen Elizabeth; the effigies on these are said to be likenesses of these queens, and if so, I have no hesitation in saying that neither of them was handsome. Queen Elizabeth was actually ugly. The portraits of these famous rivals several of which I have seen elsewhere, painted by distinguished artists, establish the fact that the Queen of Scots was not the beauty Sir Walter Scott represents her in the "Abbott" to have been, and also that Elizabeth the Virgin Queen, was distinctly the reverse.

But I must pass on from Westminster to St. Paul's Cathedral, where we went to church on Sunday. This church building is the third in size in the world, being surpassed in dimensions only by St. Peter's at Rome and the great cathedral at Milan. It is said to be built on the site occupied in pagan times by a temple of Diana. This church was begun in 1675 and was completed some twenty years thereafter, costing more than three millions of dollars. The architect, Sir Christopher Wrenn, was paid a salary, while superintending the building of this immense structure, of only $1,000 a year. The architects of our day (certainly not Sir Christopher Wrenn's superiors) would contemptuously reject any such insignificant consideration for their time and talents.

Here, too, are many monuments to the dead of England's great men, notably the Duke of Wellington, John Howard the philanthropist, Sir Joshua Reynolds the celebrated painter, contemporary and friend of Dr. Johnson, one to Dr. Johnson himself, and to Admiral Lord Nelson, the hero of Trafalgar and other great naval battles. At the Sunday service there was an immense congregation in attendance. The preacher was an American and an acquaintance, the Bishop of Canterbury, whom I knew well when he was a boy in Richmond.

The service was the grand choral service of the Church of England.

The Tower of London was next visited. This is historically the most interesting spot in England.

It is a mass of irregular and intricate buildings, erected at various periods, surrounded by a battlemented wall and deep moat. Over its principal portal we may well imagine the inscription Dante places over the portals of the infernal regions, "Abandon hope, who enter here." To the Tower there are four entrances, viz: The Iron Gate, the Water Gate, the Traitors' Gate and the Lion's Gate—so named from the menageries formerly kept here, but removed, many years ago. Old, retired soldiers, in peculiar uniform, are stationed at different parts of the building as a sort of police and these are called "beef-eaters." It is, I understand, a place given for life, or good behavior, to meritorious private soldiers, unfit by wounds or other causes for active service. In this Tower but enclosed by strong, open-work iron fencings are all the Crown jewels and regalia. The crown we first see was made for Charles II and worn by him when the throne was restored to him by Gen. Monk's action. In Queen Victoria's crown there are said to be 2783 diamonds; it is certainly a magnificent jewel, but I had neither the time or curiosity to verify the number of diamonds by counting them.

In addition to the crowns there are a large number of very heavy and artistically carved golden scepters and other regal jewels, the number of which I do not remember.

In one of the apartments within the Tower the young sons of Edward IV were murdered by order of Richard III.

Princess Elizabeth, afterwards Queen, was herself imprisoned in the Tower by order of her sister, Queen Mary. In the Chapel, within the Tower walls, Queen Anne Boleyn, second wife of Henry VIII and mother of Queen Elizabeth, was buried, having been beheaded by her husband's order, to enable him to take another wife. Lady Jane Grey and her husband, Lord Guilford Dudley, were likewise confined in this Tower, and subsequently beheaded by order of Queen Mary. King Henry VIII had a very summary and effective way of relieving himself of any of his wives of whom he might become tired—he cut off their heads, and speedily took another wife to comfort him in his widowerhood. Thus in addition to Anne Boleyn he had Catharine Howard imprisoned and beheaded in this Tower. William Wallace, the Scottish patriot, was at one time a prisoner in the Tower. King Henry VI was also a prisoner here, and was here murdered. Archbishop Cranmer and Sir Walter Raleigh were here prisoners and suffered death subsequently, the first at Oxford by burning, the latter beheaded at Westminster.

What a record of terrible crimes could these stones unfold! In one of the apartments are exhibited many full suits of plate armor, dating from the twelfth century up to to the latter part of the seventeenth century. There is among others, an equestrian statue of Charles I in full suit of the armor made for him and worn by him.

A few days ago we went to lunch at "ye old Cheshire cheese" chop house, which was the Inn where Dr. Johnson took "his ease" with his friends Goldsmith, Garrick and Boswell, and where the conversations so minutely recorded by the latter in his biography of that remarkable man, in great part, took place. It is a quaint old place, and I was assured that in no respect was the building or furniture of the Inn changed since Dr. Johnson's day. Certainly the appearance of the tables and benches indicate that the assertion is true. I sat under a portrait of the old lexicographer, on a bench, and took my lunch at a table which I was assured he once occupied for the same purpose. Near by is the house in which he dwelt when preparing his dictionary. Both of these buildings have attached to them brass tablets stating the above facts. In the neighborhood of his dwelling was the lawless Alsatia, immortalized by Sir Walter Scott in the "Fortunes of Nigel"—a narrow street leading to Alsatia.

We visited Hampton Court and Windsor Castle, the former being the residence of the English Sovereigns from Henry VIII to George II, inclusive. Queen Victoria occupies Windsor as her Winter residence.

But I cannot now enter upon a description of these palaces. I will try and do so in a subsequent letter.

WILMINGTON, N. C.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, SEPT. 1, 1897

PENNSYLVANIA DEMOCRATS.

Nominations by the State Convention—Harrity Refuses to Surrender—The Platform.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

READING, PA., August 31.—The Democratic State convention met in this city to-day and nominated Walter E Ritter, of Lycoming county, for auditor general and M. E. Brown, of Blairsville, for State treasurer. The matter of the selection of candidates was entirely overshadowed by the fight to force the retirement of Wm. F. Harrity from the national committee. The opponents of Mr. Harrity succeeded in pushing through by a vote of 990 to 184 a resolution endorsing Jas. M. Guffey for his position. Mr. Harrity's friends contend that the State convention has no power to declare his seat in the national committee vacant, and that he will not surrender without a fight.

The morning session of the convention ended with a disgraceful row, during which some delegates who did not like the way things were going, climbed upon the stage and exchanged blows. A large detachment of policemen was on hand in the afternoon and everything was serene.

The platform congratulates William J. Bryan "the glorious champion of a righteous cause" for his masterly leadership in support of Democratic principles, condemns the Dingley tariff bill and sympathizes with Cuba and the striking coal miners. The section in regard to finance is as follows:

"We, the Democrats of Pennsylvania, in convention assembled, heartily reaffirm and reiterate the principles of the Democratic party, expressed in the platform adopted by the National Convention at Chicago in 1896 and approved by 6,500,000 free and independent voters. We are firmly and unalterably opposed to the single gold standard, which has been the direct cause of the financial distress that has followed upon our people since its adoption, and we are in favor of a complete and immediate return to our original specie basis as it existed prior to the demonetization of silver."

COTTON AND TOBACCO.

Condition of Crops As Report d by the U. S. Weather Bureau.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, August 31.—The Weather Bureau, in its report of crop conditions for the week ended at 8 a. m. August 30th, says:

While the general absence of rain in the Southern States has been very favorable for cotton picking, which is becoming general over the Southern portions of the cotton belt, the crop has not made favorable progress, although doing well in some sections. In Georgia, Mississippi, Virginia and portions of North Carolina cotton is generally doing well, but in other portions of the cotton region complaints of rust, shedding and insects continue, though somewhat less numerous than in the preceding week. In Texas recent rains have improved late cotton and have started the "top" crop, but more rain is needed. In central and southern Texas the crop is well advanced, but over the northern part of the State it is from two to three weeks late.

Tobacco has not improved in Kentucky, where the outlook is less encouraging than previously reported.

GOV. O'FERRALL, OF VIRGINIA,

Will Not Support the State Democratic Ticket Nominated at Roanoke.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, August 31.—The Post will to-morrow print a lengthy and important interview with Governor Charles T. O'Ferrall, of Virginia, who last Fall declined to support the nominees and platform of the Chicago Convention and who is the recognized head of the gold Democrats in Virginia. Gov. O'Ferrall talks with plainness as to his present position and his future action. He announces his determination not to support, under present coaditions, the Democratic State ticket recently nominated at Roanoke, and gives his reasons for reaching this decision. He criticises in emphatic language the conduct of the leaders at that convention for endorsing the Chicago platform and also pays his respects to the free silver Democrats who have made him a target for abuse, claiming that they have taken advantage of his position, knowing that he could not answer them, and charging them with attempting to seek notoriety through hurling epithets at him.

DRY GOODS MARKET.

The Tone Continues Firm—An Increase in Prices of Prints Expected.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, August 31.—The dry goods market shows no change, though the tone was well sustained in nearly all grades. The demand for staple cottons is as pronounced as in the late past and prices are as firm. The spot buying is scarcely as pronounced in any grade, but mail orders are still of fair proportions. Print cloths are again firm without change of moment. The quotation is still 2¾c for spot extras, with contracts refused at that figure. Prints have not yet been advanced in any grade. Nevertheless there is great strength in all the staple grades and the impression prevails that speedy increases in prices are imminent.

GREATER NEW YORK.

Seth Low Candidate of the Citizens Union for Mayor.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

The executive committee of the Citizens Union, at a meeting held to-day decided to formally announce in the name of the organization the nomination of Seth Low, President of the Columbia College, as its candidate for the first mayor of Greater New York to morrow. The announcement will not be made until after the second meeting of Lemuel E Quigg's conference committee, which thus far the representatives of the Citizens Union have refused to attend, although they have friends among the regular Republicans.

A $2,000,000 PLANT BURNS.

Alabama Iron-Works Destroyed—800 Men Made Idle.

BIRMINGHAM Ala., August 30—The big plant of the Anniston Pipe and Foundry Company, at Anniston, Ala., manufacturers of iron pips, was destroyed by fire early yesterday morning.

The fire started from one of the furnaces, it is thought. The loss is nearly $2,000,000, with partial insurance. Eight hundred men are thrown out of work.

The plant was one of the largest in the South. It is understood that it will be rebuilt immediately in Birmingham.

LABOR CONFERENCE.

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED AT THE MEETING IN ST. LOUIS.

Relief Measures for Striking Miners—Convention to be Held in Chicago—Address by Labor Agitator Eugene Debs.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

ST. LOUIS, August 31.—The committee on resolutions of the convention of labor leaders completed its task this morning and at 10 o'clock the platform was presented to the convention. The resolutions are as follows:

Resolved, That we hereby set apart Friday, the 3rd day of September, 1897, as a "good Friday" for the cause of suffering labor in America and contribute the earnings of that day to the support of our struggling brothers—the miners—and appeal to every union man and every friend of labor throughout the country to do likewise.

Resolved, If the strike of the miners is not settled by September 20th, 1897, and announcement made to that effect by the President of the United Mine Workers, a general convention be held at Chicago on Monday, September 27th, 1897, by the representatives of all unions, sections, branches, lodges and kindred organizations of laboring men and friends of their cause, for the purpose of considering further measures in the interests of the striking miners and labor in general.

Resolved, That we consider the use of the ballot as the best and safest means for the amelioration of the hardships under which the laboring class suffers.

Resolved, That the public ownership of railroads and telegraphs is one of the most necessary reforms for our body politic.

Resolved, That we most emphatically protest against goverament by injunction, which plays havoc with even such political liberty as working men have saved from the steady encroachment of capitalism; and be it finally

Resolved, That no nation in which the people are totally disarmed can long remain a free nation, and therefore we urge her to obey article 9 of the constitution of the United States, which reads as follows: "The right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed."

DEBS' ADDRESS.

When Eugene V. Debs was called upon, his appearance was the signal for loud applause. Mr. Debs said: "I believe the gravity of the industrial situation in this country is well understood. It is quite evident the delegates to this convention are cognizant of the fact that civil liberty is dead in America. I have said, and say again for the last time, I have appealed to the courts for justice and shall appeal to them no more. The A. R U. expended forty five thousand dollars to have the question of civil rights tested in the Supreme Courts of the United States only to be told that we have no rights that capital was bound to respect. Shall we appeal to the Supreme Courts again? No. We appeal to this convention and to the country for an uprising of all the common people in every walk of life to beat back the courts and re-enthrone the rights of the American people. Labor day is near. What shall we do? I predict, my friends, that we will see the extraordinary spectacle of enslaved labor rattling its chains and dancing to the music. From the justice of the peace to the Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, all the judicial powers of the United States are directed against labor. All the organized sources of society are against labor, and if labor expects to emancipate itself, labor itself must do it."

Mr. Debs then told the convention that much destitution existed among the miners of the once proud State of Indiana, and stated that one thousand under-ground workers and their families were starving. He read the report of the commission appointed by Governor Mount to examine into the condition of the miners of Indiana, and then took up the thread of his argument.

"The time has not quite come to incite the populace," said Mr. Debs, shaking his fist vehemently. "I serve notice on the plutocratic element of this country that we are on the eve of another meeting in Chicago, which will be attended by all branches of labor. That convention will take up these same questions, and will institute agitation and keep it going until the public conscience and public heart are aroused. Then will come such an uprising as the world has never seen.

"I did not come to this convention to exploit social democracy or any other movement. There is something greater in this movement than any one element can manage—the emancipation of labor. There is no division here. Each man is entitled to his own opinion and his right to express it; each man to his duty as becomes that man. I am a trades unionist and a socialist. [Tremendous cheering.] Whenever the trades unions of this country decide to do battle with our common enemy, they can count upon us to come to the front and take our places with them and fight with them.

"Never in my life have I been more hopeful than now. I am not gifted with great visionary powers, but I can see the beginning of the end. [Cheers.] This meeting is an inspiration. It will lead to great results. This movement has attained tremendous impetus and will go ahead with a rush. When the people are ready, and that day is not far off, my friends, there will be a spontaneous uprising, the Supreme Courts will be abolished, Congress dispersed and the sacred rights of American citizens and American freedmen will be enthroned. [Great applause.]

"I plead guilty to the charge of being radical. I only wish you would allow me to be more radical still. Support us, gentlemen of the convention, and I promise you we will support the attempt to abolish government by injunction and the judges who issue them.

"On bearing arms: I hope in the march of common intelligence we will reach a point where we will be able to solve these difficulties without appealing to the sword or bullet. I cannot tell. Certain there are thousands of our fellow citizens suffering and certain this cannot last. The time will come to incite the populace.

"When this time comes you can depend on me. [Cheers.] I will not stand in the rear and ask you to go ahead. I will be in front and say to you, 'Come on.' [Renewed cheering.] I shrink from that bloodshed," and Mr. Debs paused impressively, "but if this is necessary to preserve liberty and our rights—in that event I will shed the last drop of blood that courses through my veins. [Outbreak of cheering.]

"Plutocracy cannot buy me; they may send me to jail; may ostracise me or may hang me; but, in the language of revolutionary heroes, I do not propose to part company with my self-respect, independence and manhood. We no longer have a Republic. There is not a vestige of it left. The judiciary of this country has placed a padlock on my lips, forbidden me to walk on public highways and destroyed all of my rights. I submit because you compelled me to. I am helpless. I appeal to you and to the country to come to the front, take this cause to heart and the questions will then be solved. I will be free and so will you.

"The people are ripe for a great change. All they lack is direction and leadership. Let this conference supply it. Let this conference set the pace. Announce to the world that it will temporarily adjourn for three weeks to renew preparations. Ask every man to pledge himself to be there. Come if you have to walk. No man has a right to plead poverty."

Mr. Debs went over the conditions existing in Pennsylvania, and when he finished with that State took up West Virginia. West Virginia, he said, had more government to the square inch than any State in the Union, and that meant less liberty. The less government the more liberty—the only perfect government was no government at all. In conclusion, Mr. Debs said:

"My friends, assert yourselves; enforce your cause. Let every man who can be as good as his word stand erect."

Nearly every delegate in the convention rose to his feet and cheered the speaker. He went on: "The significance of this movement portends new and important developments along the line of battle. I look forward to the time when the people will dethrone the power that has enslaved them. The movement is marching grandly forward and plutocracy will soon understand that slavery and despotism have no rights to a place on American soil."

As Mr. Debs finished, the delegates rose to their feet, jumped in the air, threw their hats in the air, and crowded forward to greet the speaker. Chairman Pomeroy pounded vigorously for order, but it was fully five minutes before the convention recovered from the spell which Mr. Debs' oratory had cast about it.

It has been agreed that the basis of representation at the Chicago convention should be one delegate to each local labor organization and two from each congressional district, every man to be a wage earner. The chair appointed Messrs. Mahon, Debs, Sovereign, Donnelly and O'Connell as a committee to arrange for the Chicago convention and inform the convention that any money intended as contributions for the striking miners should be sent to Secretary Pearce, of the United Mine Workers at Columbus, Ohio.

Notwithstanding the convention early in the morning had declined to act on President Ratchford's resolution requesting McKinley to convene Congress for the purpose of defining the authority of Judges in the matter of injunctions, a resolution to that effect but requiring the chairman of the convention to act in that direction, introduced by W. D. Ryan, the Illinois organizer, went through with a whoop, and shortly before 7 o'clock the convention adjourned sine die.

ANOTHER BOMB EXPLOSION

Greeted the Return of President Faure to Paris—Nobody Injured.

By Cable to the Morning Star.

PARIS, Aug. 31.—President Faure arrived from Dunkirk at 6 o'clock this evening. After listening to short speeches of welcome, the President entered a landau and proceeded to the Elysee palace, by way of the Rue la Fayette, the Opera, the Madeleine and the Place de Laconcorde. Enormous crowds of people lined the route and the President was warmly acclaimed. All the balconies were filled with spectators and the waving of handkerchiefs and flags was to be seen on all sides.

Ten minutes after the President had passed the Madelaine, a bomb exploded inside the railings around the church. Two arrests followed immediately and the railed enclosure was closed by the police, who began an active investigation into the outrage.

Nobody was injured by the explosion, but the affair, following as closely upon others of a similar nature, caused the greatest excitement.

The persons inside the railings of the Madeleine were minutely examined by the police before they were allowed to leave.

The fragments of the bomb found by the police resemble those exploded in the Bois de Boulogne on June 18th last, and on the Place de Laconcorde on June 16th last. It consisted of an iron tube filled with explosives and loaded with nails.

Indications That McLaurin Will be Nominated by a Considerable Majority.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

COLUMBIA, S. C., August 31—From returns received up to 10 o'clock to-night McLaurin will be nominated for Senator by a considerable majority over Evans and Irby. Evans will double Irby's vote.

COLUMBIA, S. C., August 31.—A light vote was polled in the Senatorial primary in South Carolina to day, probably not exceeding sixty thousand. Last year in the contest between Judge Earl and Governor Evans eighty-six thousand votes were polled.

The latest returns covering all accessible points to-night give McLaurin, 19,853; Evans, 6,230; Irby, 3,570; majority for McLaurin of 10,353. This may not be materially increased, but it is too great to be overcome by returns from the back districts yet to come.

STRIKERS AND MINERS.

Battle Near Washington, Indiana—A Number of Men Painfully Injured.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

LOUISVILLE, August 31.—A special from Washington, Ind., says: One hundred strikers met a crowd of miners, accompanied by the mine superintendent, Frank Strasser, on the way to start the mine this morning. A battle with rocks, fists and clubs took place between the men just outside the city limits, and a number were painfully injured. Superintendent Strasser's scalp was cut from a blow with a club and he was bruised about the body from the rocks. He and his men were followed to the town by the angry strikers. No arrests have been made.

COAL MINERS' STRIKE.

EXPECTED SETTLEMENT OF THE LABOR TROUBLE.

Considered as Settled at Columbus, Ohio—National President Ratchford Denies the Report—Strikers at Pittsburg Organizing a New Plan of Campaign.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

COLUMBUS, O., August 31.—The coal strike is considered settled here. The plan is to resume at 64 cents and work pending arbitration. The direct parties in this conference of adjustment are President Ratchford, of the United Mine Workers, and the executive committee of the operators. A number of the latter were in the city to-day, and the result is that a decision may be looked for almost at any moment. The direct effect of this decision will be the opening of the mines and the resumption of work by all the striking miners the beginning of the coming week.

PITTSBURG, August 31.—At the Monongahela house, the headquarters of the operators in this city, the news of the expected settlement of the miners strike was not at first received with incredulity. It was an unlooked for thing and not one of the operators present could believe the report until confirmative news was obtained from Cleveland.

No detailed information was received by any of the Pittsburg operators, either from Cleveland, St. Louis or Columbus and consequently they could not say whether the rate said to have been agreed upon was uniform or not.

In answer to a telegram this evening, National President Ratchford telegraphed the Post from St. Louis, saying: "Information from Columbus incorrect."

A new plan of campaign is now being formulated. What the proposed changes are could not be learned, but from a reliable source is given the fact that the entire situation will be changed in this district before the close of the week. The camps at the New York and Cleveland Gas Coal Company's plant will be continued.

National Organizer Cameron Miller, who with District Secretary Warner has assumed charge of the strike during President Dolan's absence, said this morning that the situation throughout the entire district looked very favorable to-day. He has arranged for a number of meetings in the district. These will be held before the contemplated change in the campaign is put into effect.
